The National Educational Convention as Seen by Prof. Ireland.

At the request of "ye editor," and with the consent of a liberal public, these lines are written with the hope that they will be an increment in the interests of the schools of our county and community.

Having fresh on our mind the helpful thoughts and suggestions made by the leading educators of the land, we give them without reluctance, for what they are worth, with the hope that a greater interest may be manifested in the work done in the local school room.

May we digress here for a moment to tell briefly a few things about Indianapolis. It is the capital of Indiana and the capitol building was erected in 1888 at a cost $2,000,000 and is one of the few public buildings ever completed within the original estimate of cost. There is a government building occupying a block between Pennsylvania and Meridian streets, which also cost $2,000,000. A city hall building is now being constructed at a cost of $700,000. A monument stands in the center of what is known as the circle (the streets run out from this circle as the spokes from a wagon wheel) and it is the finest one ever erected in honor of the private soldier and sailor. It was erected by the State at a cost of $500,000 and dedicated May 15, 1902, to the private soldier and sailor. It is 284½ feet high. There are numerous other points of interest, such as magnificent schools, five State institutions, five theatres, manufactorys, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings. There is a union railway station into which runs 18 steam roads and 162 trains run in and out daily. Also an interurban terminal for 14 electrical roads. After mentioning these features, we will give notes on the convention.

The superintendent's department of N. E. A. met in Indianapolis, March 1-4, and there was much discussion about Industrial Education, Hygienic Conditions and Moral Ideals. We shall not attempt an elaborate exposé of the proceedings of the meeting, but will make mention of a few of the most important addresses and the thoughts presented therein. On Tuesday afternoon it was the delight of the members to hear Dr. P. P. Claxton, of Tennessee, in an address entitled "A Richer Moral Ideal." He suggested elevating ideals. He held children should be taught that war is inhuman, tending to bring only sorrow and poverty and desolation, and that proper application of diplomacy and industry would avert future clashes between nations. He maintained that universal peace and the disarmament of all nations can result only from the efforts of the teachers in the schoolrooms of to-day, and that such ends may be accomplished in the course of two generations by instructing the child in life methods tending toward industry and social advance, rather than dealing with political and international strife.

We call it an honor when we subdue our fellow men and slay them by the thousands in war. We erect monuments to heroes of war. Why not erect them to heroes of peace? The highest honor will in the future be given to the heroes of peace.

Horace H. Cummings, of Salt Lake City, delivered the next address along moral lines and it would be well for every parent to observe his teaching. "Of what value to the individual or the State is the well trained intellect, when yoked with a corrupt heart? It but adds to the wolf the qualities of the fox. The three great forces that uplift society are the home, the church and the schools."

Is there improper home training? No religious instruction can be given in the schools lest they become sectarian. Is it given in the home? Are family ties and home influences what they should be? Make the application to your own town, if you please. Is it an uncommon thing to see boys from six to 16 years of age haunting our streets at night and puffing the cigarette which is fraught with death-dealing powers over body and mind? Do parents consider well that a good name in a boy or girl is the "immediate jewel of their souls?" Are the parents deeply concerned about how to get children to observe proper hours, and do they co-operate with the teacher in trying to secure politeness? Parents are too prone to look upon the teacher as they sometimes do the preacher, saying he is the only one benefited. Know what the child is doing and know where he is as far as possible. We can not teach the Bible in the school. Do you teach it in the home? One educator told a story which will illustrate how needful is religious training. A Salvation Army lassie called on a barkeeper for a contribution "to help in the fight." "What fight?" asked the man behind the mashogany. "The fight between Satan and the Savior," the lassie replied. "When does it come off?" asked the saloon keeper. "It's going on right now—all the time." "No," he said, "I ain't a goin' to put any o' my good money on any scrapper I don't know, an' I never heard o' either one o' them fellers yuh have just mentioned." Do we need more moral training? Yes. How are we to get it? Through the home, the school and the church. Let each do her part.

Let one common soul inspire and feed and animate the whole fabric of our educational system. To do this we must get the parents interested and there is no more satisfactory way of reaching them than through the newspapers which, (if they are like the INTERIOR JOURNAL) are always willing and anxious to lend their columns to the educator to the end that schools may be uplifted and the community benefited thereby. We will speak of Senator Beveridge's address and other interesting features in our next article.

"Bud" Reynolds Tells of Weather And Crops.

NEOLA, KANSAS.—Editor INTERIOR JOURNAL—I will again write a few items for the readers of the "cheapest and best." Of the seven weekly and semi-weekly papers we get, none come as regularly as it. Tuesday's issue reaches us on Friday and Friday's issue on Sundays, and each paper regarded by the whole family as a real "letter from home." Was sorry to learn that E. C. had sold the paper, but if it had to change hands, we are glad it got into the possession of Mr. Sandley.

Hope your Waynesburg correspondent will write oftener. We are having as fine weather as one could wish, and the wind that we had heard so much about before coming to Kansas has been splendidly so far, but we are expecting it to do some blowing just any time during the month of April.

The wheat fields are turning green since this warm weather faster than I have ever seen before. Two or three weeks ago it looked so dead that I felt like weeping over the death of the 80-acre crop which I had bought. Very late sown wheat is no doubt damaged in this locality, but the damage is not nearly so great as was first supposed. So if the chinch bugs and grasshoppers will let us alone, the weather man will be good and that tail of Halley's comet don't brush us off the map in May, Kansas may yet beat her last year's immense wheat crop, which was more than 80,000,000 bushels. The warm weather is causing the farmers to begin in real earnest to prepare for the coming crops. Some are taking advantage of warm weather by shelling and marketing their corn, which is selling here at from 58 to 62¢ at elevators, or in cars. Others are making a raid on chinch bugs by burning out fence rows, grass by roadside, etc. Still others are getting rid of straw stacks, some by scattering on wheat, others by burning; as for myself, this warm weather just makes me feel like booking a team to the 40-Oliver and going out and turning over some of this prairie sod. (But they tell me to just wait.) The way it is done here is to wait till about April 15th, then take four or six horses and do the whole business of preparing ground and planting at one trip. About eight or ten acres a day for one man and four horses; then as soon as corn comes up, go after it with corn sleds and cultivators.

We were sorry to hear of so much sickness and so many deaths in old Lincoln during the past winter, and to hear of so much bad weather. Now, it was real cold here part of the time—below was the coldest. People here say it was the worst for 25 years, but it was nothing to compare to what I have seen in Kentucky. There was a great deal of rain here in November, then it rained on Dec. 2 and 3, but since then it has not rained any, except just a mist; on Dec. 4 it snowed some, then on Dec. 7 snowed more; was about six inches deep, which stayed on about five or six weeks, with plenty of ice. Since then it has only snowed twice and only enough to cover the ground then. We have no mud, for as soon as rain falls or snow melts the water sinks. There are no springs here and I have only seen one running stream in Stafford county. The land is nearly level and not a stone. Have good water at from 30 to 50 feet. The wells are driven and most every one has a windmill for pumping.

Neola is 352 miles from Kansas City by rail, on a branch of the Missouri Pacific; is just a small station, but the land around it has recently been bought by a man who proposes to give it a chance to grow. There is one grain elevator here and the farmers have organized another elevator company that will build this spring. We are ten and a half miles southeast of Stanford, a prosperous, growing city of about 3,000 population, and about the same distance northwest of Turon. We are about 2,000 feet above sea level. The altitude is greater, at an average of about seven feet per mile, going west, through the entire length of the State.

But as this letter is now long, it may go to the waste basket. With best wishes to the I. J. and all its readers.

M. G. REYNOLDS.

MATRIMONIAL.

Rev. and Mrs. O. M. Huey, of Somerset, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage last week. The affair was a thoroughly enjoyable one.

Mr. George F. DeBorde and Miss Sallie Dudderar surprised their many friends by going to Louisville last week and having the nuptial knot tied. They had been sweethearts for a long time and while it was generally believed they would eventually marry, news of the important event came as a real surprise to our people. The wedding took place at the home of her niece, Mrs. Clarence Stucky, at 636 E. Broadway, and Rev. W. N. Briney, of the Broadway Christian church, performed the ceremony. Only a few of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony.

The groom is a fine young man, popular, industrious and sober. He holds a responsible and lucrative position with the L. & N. at Rowland and is held in high esteem by the officials of that company. His bride is a handsome blonde, popular, accomplished, and a fine young woman in every way. She is the youngest daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. H. Dudderar. The happy pair have returned to Rowland and are being heartily congratulated. They will go to house-keeping in the Eastern portion of town, probably on Whitley Avenue, where the best wishes of their many friends will always be with them.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Biters—the matchless tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. The Interior Journal.

SHELTON M. SAUFLEY,
OWNER.

HON. HARVEY HELM

of Lincoln county, is a candidate for re-nomination for Congress from the Eighth district, subject to the action of the democratic party.

A PERSONAL WORD.

I distinctly remember that when, as a lad ten years ago, I stood on a box and picked type out of the cases in the INTERIOR JOURNAL office, my chief ambition in life was to be the man who had the right to say what should go in the paper and what should not. Now, when such authority is mine, I feel that the boy did not realize what it was he asked. The responsibility of conducting a newspaper is a heavy one at all times; especially so when a new hand goes to the helm, held steadfast so long and so well by those much better equipped to guide its destiny. An abiding faith in the goodness of God, the generosity and charity of heart of the people of Lincoln and surrounding counties, coupled with a willingness to work and work hard, will go far, however, toward quieting many qualms lest the high character and noble attainments of the paper's former days mark not its career in the future.

It is no exaggeration to say that throughout the civilized world today it is recognized that there is no more potent agency for the stimulation of business, fostering of education, dissemination of information and awakening of the people to their possibilities [and moral responsibilities, than the newspaper. As a newspaper, the INTERIOR JOURNAL will continue in the future; as in the past, always to stand first and foremost for the best in all these and other good things for the people of Stanford, Lincoln county, Interior Kentucky—in which it extensively circulates—and the whole Commonwealth. There are probably a sufficient number of similar moral engines in others of these United States to look after them satisfactorily, for the present, at least.

The INTERIOR JOURNAL cannot do this, however; aye, it cannot live without the hearty support and consistent co-operation of the people of this city and community. Merchants, business men, professional men, farmers can all be benefited through its columns and can all assist it in its work. The newspaper is the great medium of communication between buyer and seller; it can serve every kind of business enterprise, in addition to its mission of information and education as a purveyor of the news. It is a stimulator of the very best life of the community in its every capacity; a great clearing-house for all the people, and when so accepted and utilized by them, can accomplish its greatest good.

I have always thought that the late Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge spoke well when he declared that every newspaper should first be a gentleman. Nothing should appear in its columns that cannot be read without a blush at the family fireside. The INTERIOR JOURNAL hopes to continue as the home newspaper of all this section of Interior Kentucky; and while faithfully chronicling the doings of the world, it will not record the nauseous news which some [classes] of papers "play up" in pandering to a depraved public taste.

The news columns of a paper should give the news as it has happened, not the personal views of the editor thereon. If the readers care to know his opinion on questions of the day, let them read the editorial columns. He will not intrude his personal opinions into the news columns, which, he believes, should alone contain the unprejudiced and uncolored description of events. The advertising columns are at the disposal of the paper's patrons. The editor has no voice there and no responsibility, save that they are always maintained at the standard that a gentleman always observes.

There is no need, I think, for declaration that the INTERIOR JOURNAL will continue democratic in politics. With democracy bred in the bone for generations, nature, almost, would have to be reversed to make the editor otherwise. And added to the natural inclination and training, he has had the advantage, like Paul, of sitting at the feet of a Gamaliel, and of learning the gospel—of democracy—pure and undefiled. Only the most unregenerate republican could spend ten years in intimate association with the well-known former editor, Col. W. P. Walton, as the new editor has done, and emerge anything but an intense champion of the Jeffersonian principles of political government. While willing and anxious to proselyte, however, the editor accords to others full freedom to think as they please and vote as they desire. He honors no man the less solely on account of honest political beliefs.

Again, the politics of a paper, like the editor's opinions on other subjects, should find expression through the editorial columns, and not in the news. There will be no discrimination for or against any man in the news on account of his political affiliation. When it comes to choose between candidates for preference within the democratic party, the INTERIOR JOURNAL will not seek, in local affairs, to indicate to its readers whom it considers the best qualified for their support. Its advertising columns will always be open to candidates, however, to set forth to the public, any claims that they may desire. When the matter is of State importance, or conditions such that the paper's readers may not be cognizant of all the issues, the editor will place such information as he has at their disposal in the way that seems best for the party and the people. Subscribing always to that very essence of democracy: the rule of the majority, when the party has spoken, he will accept its dictum and abide by its wisdom.

The new editor hopes for many improvements and to even further extend the paper's sphere of usefulness thro' its already large circulation, as the years go by. Ten years' absence from Stanford has made many changes in the personnel of its citizenship. Many he knew as a boy have moved away or are no more; others have grown up out of his knowledge or have come in from other communities. He wants to meet and know them all. He wishes all to feel that the INTERIOR JOURNAL is their paper and that it is working for them and their interests as best it can. He wants their assistance to make it better; to make this city, county and the communities surrounding better; better places to live in; happier, more prosperous in every way. It can be done if all work together. The INTERIOR JOURNAL stands ready to do its part; it wants to help all it can; but can do nothing unless you hold up its hands.

In the language of the poet, "now is the time to subscribe!"

LEGISLATIVE DOINGS.

FRANKFORT, March 12.—Retrenchment and reform are proving the watch words of many zealous members of the Lower House during the closing days of the legislative session, now that all the salaries desired raised have been raised, and other measures backed by certain interests put through.

The defeat of the bill providing for a uniform system of inspection and accounting of the public offices of the State, is one of the steps toward retrenchment which will hardly be appreciated by the people of the State when it is properly understood.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being saved in the State of Indiana every year under this law which was recently enacted there as one of the pet measures of Gov. Marshall. It places all of the county officials upon a common system of record keeping so that their business may be readily checked up by the State Examiner and Inspector, and a tab be constantly kept on their settlements with the State treasury. An extra clerk or two would be necessary in the State examiner and Inspector's office to do this work, and the watch dogs of the treasury barked at this, and did not take into consideration the immense saving which is made to the taxpayers wherever the law is in operation.

Will Shanks stood sponsor for the bill in the House, but could not get it through. It was defeated by 50 to 39 after passing the Senate.

In an effort to elevate the bar of the State, the State Bar Association drafted a bill for a State Bar Examiner, but the House put its ban on the bill too.

THIRD TIME A CHARM.

After two successive defeats in the Senate, Gov. Wilson's pet bond issue bill finally got through the Upper House, when the executive waved the big stick of an extra session over the heads of the members. The bill provides for issuance of $500,000 in bonds to help pay off the State's indebtedness. There is said to be much doubt as to the fate of the bill in the House. By its passage of this bill or not, the House may have the say as to whether there will be a special session.

HELM MAKES A HIT.

Congressman Harvey Helm, of the Eighth district, was in Frankfort Friday shaking hands with his many friends in the General Assembly and greeting politicians from over the State.

Mr. Helm says that if an appeal is made to the State Central Committee, which he does not believe at all probable, that the higher tribunal will assuredly sustain the call for the primary on April 30th. He does not believe that he will have opposition for a renomination, and prominent politicians from over the State say that he has made such a splendid record that he should have none. Some leaders here go so far as to say that when the State democracy looks about for a suitable candidate for governor next year, it might do worse than to nominate Congressman Helm. They declare that he has many elements of strength which many others who have been "mentioned" do not possess.

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE LAW.

Gov. Wilson has approved the Indeterminate Sentence bill, which makes it a law. Contrary to general impression, this law does not give the sentencing of criminals to the circuit judge, but leaves it with the jury, simply to convict, the law automatically sentencing the prisoner according to the degree of the crime of which he is found guilty. If a man is found guilty of manslaughter, and the law provides a penalty say, from one to 20 years, the prisoner comes to the penitentiary with the indeterminate sentence of from one to 20 years, the length of his prison term depending upon his conduct and the judgment of the prison commissioners as to when he is fit to be turned loose upon decent society once more. S. M. S.

POLITICAL.

Secretary of State Ben L. Bruner says he is positively not a candidate for Governor.

O. H. Pollard, of Jackson, has announced for the democratic nomination for Attorney General.

President Taft withdrew his nomination of Wm. F. Stone for reappointment as Collector of Customs at Baltimore. The President has taken this action in order to give a hearing to those opposed to Mr. Stone.

Senator Cobb, backed by Tim Woodruff and the republican machine of New York, was elected president pro tem. by the State Senate, which disregarded the advice of Senator Root and Governor Hughes, who favored Senator Hinman.

The testimony of James R. Garfield, former Secretary of the Interior, before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee was enlivened by the declaration of the witness that he did not believe the $30,000,000 bond issue, recommended by President Taft to Congress, was necessary for the proper forwarding of irrigation work in the West.

The Legislative Committee authorized to investigate the condition of Kentucky prisons have completed their work and made report to the Legislature Monday. The findings are highly complimentary to the present Prison Commissioners. The convicts were found to be well fed and clothed and their tasks light. The punishment given infractious prisoners was found not to be excessive.

The horse is a dark bay, not afraid of anything, a high actor and well broken as any horse in and out of the ring, has a good coat and carries nice head and tail, this is a sure trotter, he stepped a mile in 90 days handling, 2.24. The Warfield is a truly made horse, of grand individuality and breeding, that entitle him to become a sire of note, securing him to be one of the great race horse and famous Preakness, Dark Devil 2.09, the latter earned the title of "Monarch of the home stretch," while on the turf, and after retirement to the stud, became a valuable breeding animal as a sire. Not only have the Dark Devils produced race horses but the family has furnished many noted show ring winners as well as Dark Devil and Mambrivo King, both being champion show stallions of National Horse Show, and the Warfield has shown more than any two stallions in the world.

"Will make the present season at our farm one mile from McKinney, Ky., at $5 to insure a living colt."

Young sired by Brigadier; he runs back and forth on both sides. His colts sell for more money than any jacks in Stanford. He is 15½ hands; stands well on his feet; a sure footed getter. He is perfect in every way.

THE Delsarte entertainment given under the supervision of Mrs. A. D. Reid at Walton's Opera House Friday evening was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyable throughout. The drills were all well executed and the young ladies and gentlemen who took part are deserving of hearty congratulations. The tableaux were very artistic and beautiful. As some 75 of our young people participated in the entertainment, it would take more space than we can spare to mention them all and tell how well each one did. The most amusing number was the "Guess What" drill, in which some 12 or 15 young men, dressed as up-to-date young ladies, appeared. The boys showed excellent taste in their make-up and many at first thought they belonged to the other sex. Mrs. Reid took only two weeks to train her pupils, or rather performers, and their efforts proved that they are apt scholars and that she is a most excellent teacher. We hope she will give Stanford a return date, for no audience has, in years, been better pleased than the one which witnessed her Delsarte entertainment.

Mr. Penny's reputation as a dispenser of delightful soda water is already well known and he proposes to give even a better article the coming season.

MRS. MARIA MCKINNEY, widow of the late Madison McKinney, died at her home in the Mt. Salem neighborhood Sunday. She was in her 80th year, and was beloved by all who knew her. She leaves no children, but was connected with a large and prominent family in that section of the county. She was long a faithful member of the Baptist church. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, the burial being in McKinney cemetery.

HON. HARVEY HELM, twice Congressman from this district, will be justly honored the third time by his appreciative constituency. In an interview in the papers Sunday, Hon. William Jennings Price, of Danville, the only prospective candidate against the "Tall Sycamore of the St. Asaph," announces that he will not make the race for the democratic nomination before the primary to be held April 30. Mr. Price expresses more or less dissatisfaction over the action of the district committee which met at Nicholasville, but his friends believe that he is too good a democrat to let that affect his course, and they are sure he will be found with the united democracy of the district behind Mr. Helm at the election in November. With no other candidate in sight, the committee will meet on the date set for the primary, call it off and formally declare Mr. Helm the nominee of the party.
